The illustration shows the continuous communication in the three portions of the Church spiritually united in Jesus Christ. The members on earth send up prayers to the angels and saints for themselves and for the poor souls in purgatory. They in turn are helped by the intercession of the saints and angels, and by the graces obtained thereby. The poor souls pray for the members on earth.

TWENTY-SECOND SUNDAY AFTER PENTECOST

The Epistle of St. Paul to the Philippians, i. 6-11.

Brethern: We are confident in the Lord Jesus, that He, Who hath begun a good work in you, will perfect it unto the day of Christ Jesus. ...

This epistle was written by St. Paul from Rome, where he was in prison, to the converts whom he had made in the city of Philippi, Macedonia. They had not only received the Gospel, but had also, for the sake of it, suffered many trials; besides, they had assisted the apostles with pious gifts. St. Paul, therefore, rejoiced, and thanked the Lord. The day of Christ, spoken of by the Apostle, is the day of judgment, which comes to every man at the very hour of his death.

The Holy Gospel of Jesus Christ, According to St. Matthew, xxii. 15-21. At that time, the Pharisees going, consulted among themselves how to insnare Jesus in His speech.

Who are hypocrites?

Those who, in order to deceive their neighbors, show themselves outwardly pious, while within they are full of evil dispositions and malice; who have honey on the tongue, but gall in the heart; who, like scorpions, sting when one least expects it. Such men are cursed by God (Mal. i. 14). "The Lord hateth a mouth with a double tongue" (Prov. viii. 13). "Assumed sanctity," says St. Jerome, "is a double maliciousness."
